

Engage for Results

Involving grantees & other stakeholders in your grantmaking

You talk about your grantees as “partners.” But in the face of the obvious power differential, how can you authentically engage grantees in order to achieve your mutual goals? Could you...

- Solicit grantee feedback on your grantmaking practices?
- Incorporate grantee and community input when setting grantmaking priorities?
- Delegate funding decisions to community representatives?
- Build staff and trustee boards that reflect the communities you support?

Sounds good in theory. But what is most appropriate for your organization? And how can you best go about it?

Attend this two-day GEO skill-building intensive to learn how to make your grantmaking more effective by increasing the involvement of those most affected by it.

Register by 31 August by contacting Jillaine Smith, GEO's manager of action learning: jillaine@geofunders.org or 202.898.1843. For more information, visit www.geofunders.org/engageforresults.aspx.

GEO brings this to you in partnership with

Interaction Institute for Social Change

When & Where: Sept. 24-25th, 2008 - San Francisco, CA

Cost:

GEO & NCG Members: $595 (1st person); $395 (2nd person)

Non-Members: $795 (first person); $595 (second person)